Civil Service Reform.

I am inclined to think that there is no sentiment more general in the minds of the people of our country than the conviction of the correctness of the principle upon which the law enforcing civil service reform is based. I venture to hope that we never shall again be permitted to the system which distributes public positions purely as a reward for partisan service. Doubts may be entertained whether our Government could survive the strain of a continuance of this system, which upon every change of administration, inspires an immense army of claimants for office to lay siege to the patronage of the Government, engrossing the time of public officers with their importunities, spreading abroad the contagion of their disappointment and filling the air with the tumult of their discontent. The functions of the Presidential office have caused public anxiety and a just demand that a recurrence of such a condition of affairs should not be permitted.—President Cleveland's Message.

To Protect American Labor.

I think a reduction should be made in the revenue derived from a tax upon the imported necessities of life. We thus directly lessen the cost of living in every family of the land, and release to the public in every humble home a larger measure of the rewards of industry. We should also deal with the subject in such a manner as to protect the interests of American labor, which is the capital of our workingmen. Its stability and proper remuneration furnish the most justifiable pretexts for a protective tariff.—President Cleveland's Message.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The President says the amount paid on the public debt during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1885, was $45,993,235 43, and there has been paid since that date and up to November 1, 1885, the sum of $360,828, leaving the amount of debt at the last named date $1,514,475,860 47. There was, however, at that time in the Treasury applicable to the general purposes of the Government the sum of $66,818,292 38.

President Cleveland's usual suit is of black broadcloth, with the coat double-breasted and tightly buttoned about the body. His linen is always white; he puts on a turn-over collar every day. His favorite necktie is of black, very quiet and modest in its tie. The President ties it himself and does not require the assistance of a valet in making his toilet.

One of the significant facts which appears in the canvass of the votes cast at the recent election in New York is that the smallest Democratic plurality is that of Gen. Jones over Gen. Carr, for Lieutenant-Governor, this being only 3,162. Carr is a Catholic, and it was thought he might lose some Republican votes on that account; but the result shows that it was an element of strength.

There was laid before the Senate Tuesday a memorial from the Legislature of New Hampshire, which requests Congress to pass legislation that may secure exclusively to the American people the public lands of the United States, and prevent their sales to persons other than citizens and those intending to become such. The memorial was referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Elsewhere will be found an article from the Carson Tribune on the Senatorial question. The people should always read both sides of a question, and then they will know just what they desire to do. The JOURNAL will endeavor to publish all that is said pro or con, Republican or Democratic, upon a proposition in which the people of Nevada are interested.

The President says the total receipts for the current fiscal year ending June 30, 1886, ascertained to October 1, 1885, and estimated for the remainder of the year, were $315,000,000. The expenditures, ascertained and estimated for the same time, $245,000,000, leaving a surplus at the close of the year estimated at $70,000,000.

A gentleman, ordinarily well posted, thinks either Mackay or Hobart will yet be in the Senatorial fight, that Stewart will drop out, and that about the 4th of next July something will pop.

Nevada was the only State unrepresented at the opening of the Senate last Monday. Senator Jones is sick and Senator Fair has business interests which demand his attention.

Miss Sweet, late Pension Agent at Chicago, was married November 28th to Mr. Carter, a merchant of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. When she left office she said she was going into business.

Mahone will give way to John W. Daniels in the United States Senate, the Democratic legislative caucus of Virginia having selected that gentleman as its choice.

The San Francisco Post says: The President has a lofty literary style. It consumes space, but it makes the reader take off his hat.

Patrick Crowley has been reappointed for another term of two years Chief of Police of San Francisco. He deserves it.

The President's message strikes us as a good one, with the exception of the part relating to silver.

The President's message is well received and favorably commented upon at home and abroad.

HIGH LICENSE OR PROHIBITION.

Frank Leslie's says:

The liquor question has reached an importance which challenges the thoughtful attention of every good citizen. More capital is invested in the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages than ever before. The liquor interest has become a power in politics, and in some of our larger cities practically controls elections. In New York a large proportion of the recently elected Aldermen are liquor sellers. But the increasing power of the liquor interest is met by a steady increase in the opposition. At the recent election in this State, the Prohibitionists cast 30,000 votes, and such a demonstration of strength cannot be disregarded. Throughout the country various forms of legislative restriction of the sale of liquor are commanding a wider support. Maine, the home of Prohibition, and distant Kansas, where Prohibition has been the law for several years, both remain faithful to the principle. Other States have from time to time adopted similar rigid enactments. At present, Maine, Vermont, Kansas and Iowa have prohibitory laws, and the question has caused a new division of the voting force in Georgia, where all but 14 of the 137 counties have declared for Prohibition. In Illinois and Nebraska a system of High License prevails.

Which is the wiser course, High License or Prohibition?

Those who wish to answer this question honestly will be materially aided by recent reports upon the workings of the High License system in Nebraska and Illinois. Take the former State. In the city of Omaha, fifty-seven of the worst saloons have been closed, in spite of a great increase in population, and the income to the city from the saloons paying the high tax was enough to pay the salaries of all the school teachers, with $50,000 over. Moreover the political power of the saloon-keepers has been broken. In Lincoln, the capital of the State, there are twenty-two saloons, or one to every thousand inhabitants, while in Philadelphia there are 6,000 saloons, or one for every 150 inhabitants. In Lincoln a license costs $1,000, in Philadelphia $50; and the saloons of the latter city under the Low License are more numerous than the bakeries and groceries combined. Take Illinois. In the City of Chicago the High License has increased the city's revenue from $200,000 to $1,500,000, and reduced the number of saloons from 4,900 to 3,300. In Hyde Park, a suburb of Chicago, there is scarcely one-half the former number of saloons, notwithstanding an increase in population; the income has been multiplied ten fold with a consequent reduction in taxation, and the number of arrests, a significant point, has decreased from 1,895 to 678. In Springfield there has been a reduction of 33 per cent. in the number of saloons, and an increase in the revenue from them of 231 per cent. Similar results are reported from the smaller towns of the State. In some no licenses at all are granted, either from the inability of any resident to pay the required tax or on account of a local vote against the issuing of licenses. Some of the reports are worth especial attention. Cairo reports the increase of revenue fifty per cent.; decrease of saloons nearly fifty per cent.; decrease of notable intemperance thirty per cent. Tolona reports that the business of the police courts has been diminished ninety per cent. In short, the revenues of the State of Illinois have been increased from $700,000 to over $4,500,000, the number of saloons reduced from 13,000 to less than 9,000, and the system is heartily supported by the best elements of both parties. The license fee in Nebraska is $1,000, and in Illinois, $500. In both States local option prevails.

As to Prohibition, every important observer knows the impossibility of rigidly enforcing a prohibitory law in large cities. The truth is, that such legislation does not receive the support of many who honestly believe in temperance. The results in Nebraska and Illinois have been compared with the results of Prohibition in Kansas and Iowa, and it is stated that in the cities of the latter States there are proportionately more places where liquor is sold than in the towns and cities of Nebraska, while, of course, no revenue is derived from its sale. The revenue is important, but not of the first consequence.

The all-important point is to find the best way of limiting the liquor traffic and diminishing its evils. The facts cited show that these results have been reached by High License, and the practical working of the system should commend it to all friends of temperance. The question is coming to the front in New York and Pennsylvania as well as in New England and the West, and the intolerance of the Prohibitionist may be productive of as much harm as the intolerance of the saloon keepers.

Stanford and Evans chatted together in their seats in the "suburbs" of the Senate Chamber Monday. They are in the rear by reason of the fact that they are new members. Yet either of these two big-brained men may possibly be the nominee of the Republican party for President in 1888.—San Francisco Post.

Vanderbilt was worth $200,000,000.

THE COMING MAN.

Carson Tribune 8th.

That Hon. W. M. Stewart will be a very prominent candidate for Senatorial honors, no sane person will attempt to gainsay; he has announced to his friends that he intends making the race, and the Virginia Enterprise of Sunday advocates his election. That journal used to be the leading paper of the State and its editors, in days gone by, voiced, to a great extent, the sentiments of the majority of the people, and even now its dicta are considered somewhat as rulings for the Nevada voters.

It does not seem a good idea to set up one man above others, thus early in the Senatorial fight, but better to wait the current of events and let all the Senatorial races be paraded on the political course, before making a selection of either. The Tribune fully recognizes the ability of ex-Senator Stewart; that he did all he could for his constituents when a member of the United States Senate; that he would be a great power in Congress; that when in office he is always accessible to the people of Nevada either in person or by immediate reply to epistolary correspondence and further, that he is by far the most competent of any that have been referred to in print as a candidates for the honor. But there may come before the people a bona-fide resident of Nevada; a Republican, sans reproche, a man the peer of W. M. Stewart in everything that goes to make a statesman, and, in such a case, it might be considered advisable and would be eminently proper to select the home material.

The Enterprise says: "This brings up the question whether it is good policy for us to rule out of the list of available candidates big brainy men of national reputation, whether they lived in Maine or California. The United States Senate is the foremost legislative chamber in the world and every State should endeavor to be represented by men not only of mature years, but who rank with the most renowned in intellectual vigor and grasp. Nevada needs, in this juncture, one who can successfully wrestle on the floor of the Senate with the strongest equipped man intellectually, a man who can in debate enter the lists with such exponents of Eastern public opinion as Evarts, Sherman, Edmunds, Hawley and Anthony."

True, every sensible person in the State of Nevada recognizes the necessity of sending to the National Council an able, experienced, honorable gentleman who shall be an attorney in fact, to conserve our best interests at this particular juncture and the determination should be to elect none other, and if it be seen that no such person is to be found in the ranks of the Republican party, who has been a continuous resident of Nevada, why by all means flock to W. M. Stewart and send him to Washington, but let good search be made for a proper Nevada. In this State are men of as fine intellect and possessed of as much political acumen as in any State of the Union, and it behooves the leading politicians to cast about, and without prejudice for or against any, select if they can, a capable man for the position of Senator, from among the people of their own State. We repeat that none of the men referred to in print as candidates for the position of U. S. Senator are fit for the office nor nearly as eligible in any point of view as Hon. W. M. Stewart.

Nevada Tobacco

Wednesday's Enterprise says

Yesterday we received a neat package of tobacco leaves as a sample of that popular weed raised this year on the ranch of Geo. Alt, Glendale, on the banks of the romantic Truckee. The leaves are large, clean and good, and although not well cured, show what can be done in that line, and corroborate what we have so many times written as to the feasibility of raising tobacco in Nevada. The plant grows wild all over the State, on the plains, in the ravines and on the mountain sides among the sagebrush, naturally without any artificial irrigation. It can be realized as easily as cabbages, and with a proper understanding of its cultivation and true method of curing adapted to the climate, it may yet prove to be an important and lucrative industry among the undeveloped resources of Nevada.

Observant.

The Enterprise says: "Charley Legate was up from the Insane Asylum yesterday, taking observations of the Comstock weather croppings, with a view to regulating the same. The people of Reno never enjoyed such good weather as they have since Charley Legate has lived with or near them."

NO IMPORTED CANDIDATES.

A Nevada Man Shall Represent Nevada.

CARSON, NEV., Nov. 8, 1885.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—One citizen—controlling the columns of a newspaper that has hitherto aspired to be the leading Republican paper of this State—openly advocates the Senatorial claims of the candidate selected by a syndicate of Californians, and expresses the opinion that the Republicans of this State have no right to question the correctness of his views. He declares that it is right and expedient to select a candidate for United States Senator for Nevada from among those whose applications, business or social relations have been with the people of California; that no man who grubs for a living in this State is 'equal to the task of contending with us' in the arena of the Senate, that we want big brainy men of national reputation, that such men have to be imported; that there is nothing for a man of his caliber to do in Nevada."

What nonsensical twaddle! The article in question is a direct insult upon the intelligence of the members of the Republican party in this State. It is not true that we have no one within this State that is qualified for the position. There are men in every county in this State, that, in point of intelligence, purity of character and integrity of purpose, are the peers of the person selected and imported by California. There are, at least, a dozen professional lawyers, at the bar and upon the bench, who are his equals in point of legal and political ability who could successfully wrestle on the floor of the Senate with the strongest Senators of other States. There are men engaged in farming, mining, and other pursuits that fully understand the business interests of this State who could—if chosen—faithfully represent us in the Senate of the United States. If the claims of the imported candidate are based solely upon the grounds thus advanced in his favor, they are not interior to those which can be advanced in favor of our own people. He is not of us. He has not raised his voice in our favor for the past ten years. He has not helped us with his immense brain in any of the canvasses we have made during that time. He has not even aided us by his residence in this State. If there is no man here for a man of his distinguished caliber, let us be content with the man of average ability who has cast his fortunes with us and has sought, by his presence, to build up and advance the various industries of this State.

We are left in doubt as to the true meaning of the word "caliber" as used in the article referred to. It may mean mental caliber or it may mean physical caliber. As it is intimated that there is no room for him in this State, it may mean "the diameter of the bore."

There are plenty of mining men—as well as others—that understand the silver question. The papers written by ex-State Senator Farrell are as able and meritorious as the voluminous manifesto of the imported candidate. Hon. C. C. Stevenson, the Chairman of the Silver Convention, is as well posted on this subject, and could be relied upon to present it as ably as the imported candidate. Hon. C. C. Powning and Hon. Thomas Wren know what is needed and could accomplish as much, by way of favorable legislation, as the imported candidate.

Other names of Nevada men might be mentioned with equal favor. The Republicans expect to carry this State next Fall and they do not intend that the fruits of their victory shall be awarded to any imported candidate selected by outsiders.

A NEVADA REPUBLICAN.

More Reduction Works

The Elko Independent says:

Surveyor E. C. McClellan has returned here from a trip to the Eastern verge of the county where he has been professionally employed. From him we learn that a company of business men are about to erect extensive reduction works on Deep Creek, in Utah, but close to the Nevada line. The location is selected on account of its eligibility, being in the midst of an extensive and important mineral belt, including a number of districts in this and White Pine county. The establishment of these works at the point designated will have the effect of renewing mining operations in that vicinity by imparting value to ores heretofore worthless on account of their remoteness from lines of transportation.

"W. D." in Carson Free Lance

TO THE FREE LANCE:—The editor of the Carson Index in jocular mood endeavors to laugh away my recent communication on the $380,000 school bond. As this is a most serious subject—one in which present and future generations are interested—I must decline to join the gentleman upon his farcical platform, but will endeavor to meet with modest earnestness the few points which he attempts to make against my position.

The difficulty under which the editor of the Index lies is that he has never taken the trouble to inform himself accurately upon the matter under consideration. His premises being incorrect, his logic, however perfect, must necessarily lead to untrue conclusions.

In the first place he assumes that the Territorial debt was wiped out when the bonds by which it was represented were bought by the School Fund. This is not true. Its form was changed, but the $380,000 indebtedness remained just the same. It was simply a transfer of creditors. According to this editor's method of reasoning, if A gives his note to B for a sum of borrowed money, and B sells his note to C, then the obligation is wiped out and A is not indebted to anybody. But this is neither logic nor truth.

When Nevada became a State a bonded Territorial debt of $380,000 existed. This indebtedness was assumed by the State, and so the State owed just that much, whether it was called a Territorial debt or a State debt. When the bonds were taken up by the State School Fund it was still a debt so far as the State was concerned. The only person who doesn't believe this is the editor of the Index. He assumes, however, that others accept this fallacy of his own creation, and then proceeds to say that it isn't true. No one but the Index editor considers this bond as a credit. It is a debt, plain and simple.

"To honor the bond at any time this side of the millennium would be disastrous to the commonwealth," says the writer intimated. This may be his opinion, but others do not think so. Neither does anyone else believe that "to postpone its payment forever will be evidence of its high integrity on the part of the obligor."

What would the Index writer have? Does he want the bond made redeemable? Then let it be so. Let a sinking fund be established for its redemption. It could be paid, though of course it would take some time. Then when the money for the bond has been paid into the State School Fund let an investment be made in United States bonds. The result would be that after paying premium and exchange the rate of interest to be realized by the School Fund would be about 2 1/2 per cent. on the investment. Therefore in order to maintain the amount at present available for school purposes, it would be necessary to levy a special tax to raise an additional sum that would be equal to 2 1/2 per cent. on $380,000. This would come from the people, of course, and it is therefore clear that they would be realizing only 2 1/2 per cent. on the money paid by them in the redemption of the bond.

If, however, the State should issue its bonds to raise the money for this redemption the case would be worse, for in addition to the 2 1/2 per cent. on $380,000 which would have to be raised by special tax, the money lenders would have to be paid at least 5 per cent. on the amount required to liquidate the bond.

The assumption that the big school bond has anything to do with the legislative general appropriations is not well founded. In 1881 a law was passed authorizing the assurance of $80,000 worth of bonds for the purpose of building a State Insane Asylum, and at the same time, for the purpose of keeping the State on a cash basis, the issuance of $220,000 additional bonds was permitted. This would bring the State debt up to the constitutional limit of $300,000. In pursuance of this, bonds were issued, and of these $140,000 are now outstanding. If this be in violation of the Constitution, the Index editor, as chairman of the State School Fund should bring the subject to the attention of the courts.

The legislative appropriations are in no case based on the big school bond, the Index editor to the contrary notwithstanding.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it.
